Looting May Cost Russ Government Claim In Austria

Austria Chancellor Says He Will Refuse To Pay For "Empty Workshops"

UNITED NATIONS WOULD GET ISSUE

By MORRIE S. HELTZLER (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

VIENNA, Aug. 27.—Chancellor Leopold Figl of Austria took his first official recognition today of reports that the Soviets are looting Austrian factories preparatory to handing them over to the Vienna government for $150,000,000. Figl told International News Service in an exclusive interview that if Russia tries to give Austria nothing but "empty workshops," then the Austrian government will refuse to pay the Soviet money claims.

He said that in such a case Austria will appeal to the three western powers and, if necessary, to the United Nations.

Under the suggested Austrian peace treaty now being negotiated in London among the United States, Russia, Britain and France, Austrian would pay $150,000,000 to the Soviet Union in return for the so-called former German assets in Austria.

Seized Factories

Russia, in its interpretation of the Potsdam agreement, seized hundreds of factories in Eastern Austria which they regarded as belonging to Hitler Germany. It is these factories that Figl says his government will not pay for if they are dismantled.

If the factories, when released by the Soviets to Austria, are not in operating condition, said Figl, Austria would not feel obliged to pay for them. He added:

"We would consider article three (of the Austrian treaty) to be irrelevant and would protest to the three western powers."

"If the four powers were unable to come to an agreement," he continued, "we would then be ready to take our case to the United Nations."

(Article 35 is the article in the Austrian treaty which provides for relinquishment of all Soviet claims to former German assets in Austria in return for $150,000,000. This is one of the chief articles still unagreed upon by the big four deputies now in London.)

Commenting further on alleged Russian dismantlings of factories in the Soviet zone of Austria, the chancellor stated that all such reports were being "carefully checked."

State's Teacher Supply Improved

HARRISBURG, Aug. 27.—(INS) — The Department of Public Instruction today reported an "improved" teacher supply for Pennsylvania's forthcoming school year.

Superintendent Francis B. Haas said "the shortage of teachers for the 1949-50 school year is not so great as was anticipated."

But he explained that reports from county and district superintendents as of July 20 indicate that time 2,810 teaching posts were unfilled in the public school system. Haas said 1,471 existed in rural areas where only 617 instructors were available to fill the posts.

Although 2,293 qualified teachers are available throughout the state, Haas explained, "the situation is complicated because the available supply is not distributed in accordance with the subjects to be taught or the particular location where the need is greatest."

The improved supply is due to higher salary schedules and more liberal teacher retirement allowances enacted by the 1949 legislature, Haas said. In addition, the employment situation in other fields has caused prospective

Oil Anniversary Is Marked Today

TITUSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 27.—(INS)—The nation's oil industry is 90 years old today, and Titusville—the site of the first commercial well in the world—is celebrating. Simulated reactivation of that first well, addresses by Secretary of the Navy Frances P. Matthews and Senator Andrew F. Schoepf, of Kansas, and dedication of a new wing of the Col. Edwin L. Drake Museum will highlight the day's activities.

Colonel Drake brought in the first well ninety years ago, and today his granddaughter, Mrs. E. Ross Carver of Nashua, N. H., will press a button which will set in operation a replica of the derrick used on the historic occasion.

Tribute To Colonel

Several thousand townpeople and visitors, including many leaders in the oil industry, will pay tribute to the late Colonel beginning with the laying of a wreath on his grave in Woodlawn cemetery.

Navy fighter planes and the long-distance record holder, the "Truculent Turtle," which flew 11,235 miles non-stop from Perth, Australia, to Columbus, O., in 1946, will fly and dip their wings in salute.

Secretary Matthews' address will be broadcast by the Mutual network at 11:30 a.m. (EDT). Senator Schoepf will speak at a luncheon for noted guests.

The museum dedication will feature presentation of the original drilling tools used by Colonel Drake. Mrs. F. Wayne Fesenmyer of Bradford, Pa., will present the tools, which were made by W. A. "Uncle Billy" Smith, Colonel Drake's driller.

Autumn Means Social Affairs, And Those Affairs Mean Flowers

Just round the bend is autumn and not so far away the winter.

Social affairs will be under way again. No more outdoor teas or garden parties. Bridge parties, receptions and teas in the home then.

Why not decide now that your social affairs this autumn and winter will have the ultimate touch in taste.

Flowers of course! And may we suggest that we specialize in designing bouquets for social events?

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 27.—If I am allergic to muscles, I come by it honestly. I come from a clan that has always believed in the supremacy of mind over muscle.

Papa always admitted that a gorilla could kick a man. But papa always said a man was a fool to pick a fight with a gorilla in the first place and deserved what he got, in the second.

Muscles Win Too

However, through my contact with the West Virginia North-South football game in this city, I have just discovered the harsh but incontrovertible fact that muscles win as many college scholarships as minds.

This community has been swarming with the pick of the West Virginia high school football players, class of '49. There were fifty, all told; twenty-five from the north half of the state and the same number from the south.

There have been approximately an equal number of college and varsity scouts in her to case the situation. And, as this evening sun goes down, I am informed by a number of authorities that each and every one of the high school players is already signed, sealed and delivered to some college via an athletic scholarship.

It's an odd thing, but none of the authorities on athletic scholarships wants to be quoted. Like the brass in the United Nations and in Washington who know all the answers, they come all over shy when you pin them down for direct quotation on an embarrassing point.

Finds It Incredible

But the incredible—that is, incredible to me—fact is that from ten to twenty thousand boys will go to college this autumn on some kind of athletic scholarship! This is the ultra-conservative figure. Two or three of the gentlemen thought it would run as high as 30,000! But I can't swallow that. It simply sells brains too short!

The scholarships vary in conditions and worth. There are those like the two given annually by the Charleston Gazette which sends two young football players to the University of West Virginia. These scholarships are for $500 a year for four years, with no strings attached.

The recipient doesn't even have to play canasta, much less football, unless he wants to.

Then there are legions of other scholarships that provide for footbed, board and found. These may run from a few thousand dol-

EMOTIONAL UPSETS AND ASTHMA

Years ago I said in this column that although I knew then of no scientific studies clearly showing the relations of emotional disturbances to the frequency and intensity of asthma, I had strong suspicions that hampering emotions were a big factor. I arrived at this conclusion from observing my two boys who were asthmatic in their years from about five to ten, one wholly recovered since, the other with only an occasional light attack since then. I also observed a grandchild when she was about six years old while she was in a state of irritation one day, indicating symptoms of asthma then and for some hours thereafter. Also a few years ago I observed a mother, who long has been subject to asthma, having violent onsets when especially worried over family matters concerning an adolescent son. The relation of the emotional factors to her asthma attacks and to their frequency and intensity was manifest.

In recent years I have come across in scientific literature references to clinical studies the results of which indicated that frustrating emotions do at least intensify frequency and severity of asthmatic attacks in those who have been predisposed to asthma.

Captain Pike had such a small force that the idea that he could have created an incident to provoke war, even if that had been his intention, is far fetched. Apparently the Captain knew he was in Spanish territory when he built a small fort on the Conejos River, although he said in his diary he believed he was on the Red River in United States territory.

Probably the Captain was doing some legitimate scouting. At the time armed Spaniards were accustomed to overstep the U. S. boundary on occasion. Although he later was promoted to colonel and died a hero's death in Canada in the War of 1812, Captain Pike, because of the malicious stories regarding his Colorado expedition never received for himself and his men the emoluments which Congress gave to the members of the Lewis and Clark expedition.

GUILT BY ASSOCIATION

Historians still are finding it necessary to disprove the calumnious stories which started 142 years ago to the effect that Zebulon M. Pike, noted explorer, took part in a traitorous conspiracy against his country.

The latest defense of Captain Pike comes from Dr. W. Eugene Hollon of the University of Oklahoma in a biography entitled "The Lost Pathfinder."

Pike was unfortunate in some of his associations—not that those associations were his fault, however. When Pike, then 26 years old, was ordered to explore the territory recently acquired by Thomas Jefferson's Louisiana Purchase, his commanding officer was Gen. James Wilkinson, commander of the Army in the West.

Later it developed that the General was in the pay of the Spanish, and when the General and Aaron Burr were accused of plotting to separate the western states from the Union, some people immediately jumped to the conclusion that Pike's expedition was part of the scheme.

A VICTIOUS SCHEME

Another scheme incubating in Washington is to subsidize European exports with American tax money. More European manufactured goods could be imported at cheaper prices, the European manufacturers being assured of their money by the United States treasury.

Thus Europe would boom and the success of the Marshall plan would be proved. But what of the United States of America?

We have built here virtually a self-sufficient economic system. Nearly all of the things we want we produce. It is the greatest market on earth and every nation would like to have outlets here. But the plain fact is that importation cuts down the volume of our own production, creates unemployment and threatens depression.

Yet America must have some trade. Its mass production system creates surpluses which must be marketed abroad or the producing machinery slows down. The only answer is to ship out our surpluses and import enough foreign goods to pay for them. Anything else will punish our domestic economy.

Certainly subsidizing European imports into this country would hurt both American industry and labor. It's surprising labor-minded government would even think of it.

Scientists are working to extend human life, that man may have more time to work on such things as the atomic bomb to shorten it.

Billy the Kid, one of the Wild West's wildest, was born in Brooklyn, according to a new book. This dispels the suspicion that Billy, like everything else, was invented by the Russians.

"Lips That Touch Liquor!"

Speaking Of Operas

By PAUL GALLICO

It must be a most frustrating thing to be the author of an opera because nobody ever seems to remember the story connected with the doings, which strikes me as an odd thing, what with everybody being familiar with what most of the operas are about. You say "Carmen," and people will say, "Oh, yes, that bullfighter fellow and the cigarette girl or something," or "La Boheme" and they are right there with, "Oh, that's all about that artist chap in Paris and the girl who dies of consumption in the end," or mention "Aida" and they can tell you it's the one where the fellow comes out in the first act and sings "Celeste Aida," but that's as far as it goes. And the thing that gets my goat is that I can't tell you either without looking them up, and I've seen 'em all when I was going through college, so I ought to remember.

Take "Carmen"

Take "Carmen," for instance. Well, now there's this here girl Carmen who works in a cigarette factory somewhere in Spain. I think I've got that much straight. Then there's a fellow by the name of Don Jose who was apparently a soldier and another one by the name of Escamillo who was a bullfighter and another dame named Micaela.

Well, that's the case except for a lot of gypsies who also get into the story somehow, but what is it these people do to, with and about one another? You'd think a body would be able to remember something so famous as the "story" of Carmen, particularly after Rita Hayworth Kahn did it dry, that is to say, without music. I know there is a lot of untrammelled passion in it which, of course, is what you would expect with a mess of Spaniards and gypsies around and I'm pretty sure that somebody pulls a knife before it is over.

As it comes back to me, this Carmen flirts with Don Jose when he gets into a jam which results in his being fired out of the army. But why? And what for? And what was the matter with the Spanish Army that an officer couldn't take a shine to a local babe without getting tossed out on his ear?

All right, then, what about this bullfighter Escamillo, and where does he fit in? Or is he out of some other opera? No, I guess he's Carmen's original boy friend, which would seem to make it a triangle story until we remember that this kid Micaela is in it too, which makes it not a triangle, but a quadrangle, and maybe that's why it's so difficult to remember how they are all tangled up with one another.

Confusing, No Less

You know, you can whistle or hum the music all right where it goes "Da-de-da-da-da-da-da" and the bullfighters march in, but where they are marching, or why, and what this has to do with the jam in which Don Jose finds himself, or what those two tricks, Micaela and Carmen, are up to at the moment just doesn't seem to come back to me except that it is definite that everybody is heading for trouble. Big trouble, or it wouldn't have got to be an opera. That's what is so baffling about not being able to remember.

It must all have been terribly important for them to have engaged all those bull fiddle and kettle drum players, castanet clickers, first and second violins, trumpets, French horns, flutes, oboes and bassoons, costumes, lights and scenery and famous stars, and put the thing on at the Metropolitan or Covent Garden, and charge twelve to fourteen bucks a throw for seats to go inside and see it happen. For that amount of money you'd want Julius Caesar, Napoleon, Alexander and the story of the Flood, all rolled into one, and here it's just about these four people and you can't even recall what it was.

There's a lot of killing at the end, but there again you're speculating and playing the form. You don't really KNOW. There's always a killing at the end of an opera, timed usually for an 11:10 carriage call, otherwise they might go on and on until five or six in the morning and never know when to stop. The idea in opera is never to solve anybody's troubles, but just to lead the characters deeper and deeper into jams until eleven o'clock when come the shivs, the principals begin collapsing all over the stage in various degrees of ventilation and the audience starts reaching for its wraps.

I suppose Escamillo gets "hiss" from a bull who up to this point has taken no part in the story, but could be brought in conveniently at the end to knock him off offstage, while Don Jose could attend to Carmen right out in front of everybody, giving us two down and two to go. But this leaves us stuck with Don Jose and Micaela still alive and now we're really in trouble because I don't think those two were ever sore at one another in the story. Unless someone fixes their wagons, they are quite likely to stay up there on the stage and sing all night, particularly Don Jose who is a tenor and something of a showoff.

Well, you have a go at it, because that's all I can remember. Maybe it just wasn't such a hot story to begin with. . . .

Looking At Life

By ERICH BRANDEIS

I must be an awful specimen of a human being, and after writing today's column I shall probably have myself psychoanalyzed to see whether I am a man or a beast.

But, would you believe it? I actually chuckled with glee when I read that story about the Aga Kahn and his Begum or Begad or Begee or whatever it is) being robbed of almost a half million dollars' worth of jewelry and six thousand dollars in cash, while on an automobile trip in the Riviera.

Sometimes I wonder whether those Communist idiots here in America realize how many millions of dollars are being given to charity, education and research by our wealthy.

I wonder how many Communists have been treated in free clinics, read books they got in free libraries endowed by the rich and loafed on unemployment money a mass in the Far East.

Millions are next to starvation. They crawl through their miserable lives stricken with disease, clad in filthy, germ-infested rags, without food, without a penny to their names and without that one thing which keeps people alive when everything else is gone.

But here is that fat, smug, Aga Kahn and his Begum or Begad or Begee, joy-riding their luxurious and useless way through life, decked in jewels, throwing around wads of unearned money, flaunting their riches to a suffering world.

I certainly have no admiration for robbers or criminals of any sort.

And I do most certainly believe that the example set by the Aga and his Begum or Begad or Begee is as much of a felony as burglary or robbery—or any other crime.

But here is that fat, smug, Aga Kahn and his Begum or Begad or Begee, joy-riding their luxurious and useless way through life, decked in jewels, throwing around wads of unearned money, flaunting their riches to a suffering world.

I am strictly for the capitalistic system.

I believe that the fellow who earns a lot of money is entitled to have a good time. Let him have diamonds, fur coats, as many dozen homes as he wants to be other-ed with, and nineteen sixty-seven cylinder automobiles if he chooses.

But that same fellow also has obligations.

That same fellow has no right to get fat on the hunger of others. Fortunately here in America the great majority of our rich men realize their debt to their fellow men.

Sometimes I wonder whether those Communist idiots here in America realize how many millions of dollars are being given to charity, education and research by our wealthy.

Please don't misunderstand me. What I say about the Aga Khan and his mate isn't sour grapes.

WASHINGTON—Chairman Cal Vinson (D) Ga., of the house armed services committee: "There has been very substantial and very compelling evidence that the air force has selected and procured the B-36 bomber solely on the grounds that this is the best aircraft for its purpose available to this nation today."

LONDON—Playwright George Bernard Shaw: "Cromwell must be dragged out of my pedigree. But I still hold to MacDuff, Thane of Fife and slayer of Macbeth (as my ancestor)."

American journalist and statesman, Horace Greeley was born of poor parents February 3, 1811, at Amherst, N. H. He was apprenticed to a printer at 14. Going to New York, he established the Morning Post, the first low-cost newspaper printed in New York. He had a passion for politics and became so well known politically, leaders of the Whig party selected him as editor of a campaign newspaper. The New York Tribune was his first financially successful paper. He was an anti-slavery leader. He was one of the founders of the Republican party and was once nominated for president of the United States, but defeated. He is said to have told young men to go west and grow up with the country. Died November 29, 1872.

Tomorrow being Sunday . . . there will be many who won't be able to find time to attend the church of their choice . . . may we take this opportunity to give you a short editorial on Developing Our Talents:

God has given each one of us talents. To some He has given one talent, while to others He has given more than one. God holds everyone responsible for his talents. He who has one talent is just as responsible for it as the person that has several.

It is up to each one of us to find out what his talents are and to develop them. We may develop our talents by private lessons or by group study. When one is choosing his life work, he should consider his faculties. Being skilled along certain lines may lead one to select a particular calling. We must use our talents in young people's work as well as other church work. Our talents help us in spending our leisure time. Being talented along certain lines gives pleasure to our friends as well as to ourselves. Using one's talents helps other people. If one doesn't develop his talents, they are doing no one any good. He is like the one in the parable, who dug in the earth and hid his Lord's money.

What are we going to do with our talents?</

Philadelphia Rolls Out Carpet For Legionnaires

By TOM R. BRISLIN
(N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27.—American Legion Commander Perry Brown said today that Philadelphia will be turned topsy-turvy by the Legion's 31st national convention next week, but in a "nice, rowdyless way."

Brown, checking in with advance echelons of the Legion, declared the 35,000 veterans of two world wars invading Philadelphia for the affair will engage in "plenty of fun, but there will be no rowdism permitted."

He added:

"There just isn't time or inclination for knocking things down. There will be no town-busting."

But Philadelphia authorities were taking all precautions to meet any situation which might develop during the four-day conclave beginning Monday. Commander Brown's pledge of a quiet and orderly gathering notwithstanding.

A special all-Legionnaire police detail of 250 patrolmen was assigned to "guide and protect" the visiting Legionnaires.

Won't Dampen Fun

Police Capt. Gustave Blind said the detail will not try to "dampen or to interfere with legitimate fun," but would step in and halt the "more destructive types of horseplay."

An effort went out to all police to watch for professional "con" men, inevitable at big gatherings such as this. The "con" men are gamblers who try to lure unwary visitors into hotel-room poker sessions or dice games.

Another measure designed to keep the convention "safe and sane" was an order to arrest all persons using water pistols, electric canes or other trick devices found in the arsenals of practical jokers.

A Philadelphia ordinance bans such "weapons," but supplies were reported plentiful just the same.

Commander Brown's promise of a rowdyless convention came as everyone in Billy Penns town rolled out the plush carpet of welcome for the Legionnaires pouring into the city.

City Decked Out

Long accustomed to playing host to great national gatherings such as this, the Quaker City is decked out in its best "bib and tucker" for the affair.

The convention's business sessions, incidentally, will be held at Convention Hall where both major political parties held their presidential nominating sessions last summer.

Brown assured some worried hoteliers, business places and just plain citizens that there was no reason to "harbor fears for the safety of the city."

Actually, Brown asserted, the Legionnaire's alleged reputation as a "town-buster" has been "greatly exaggerated." Said Brown:

"The Legionnaire at his rowdiest never quite measured up to the legend that grew about him."

"The idea of a solid citizen saving his oats and dollars all year long for the purpose of raising uninhibited can with his buddies might capture writers fancy, but it doesn't square with the facts."

Brown called the 1949 Legionnaire a "better-mannered trouper" than ever before. He added:

Transition Period

"There's a reason for it. The Legion is passing now through a transition period that will see its leadership shift from older to younger members."

The old-timer is settled and more stable. The GI is at a serious stage of readjustment. Hard-pressed to meet mounting responsibilities at home and on the job, he brings a business-like attitude to his Legion activities.

Brown denied the Legionnaire of 1949 is "cooling off" in his enthusiasm for veteran and Legion activities. He declared:

"Today's veteran has as much steam as ever, but he's letting it off in post and convention work sessions. He is not convinced that the world—even America—has been made safe for democracy."

"The old ginger is there alright. It's simply going more quietly into constructive channels."

Or are you one of those individuals who does not seem to have any special talents? Only 1% of the population ever achieves positions of leadership. The other 99% might well be considered God's little people. What does God intend for such persons?

Court House

City Appeal In Supreme Court

Brief For Appellant Has Been Placed On File To Argue Case In Few Weeks

OTHER NEWS OF COURT HOUSE HILL

The appeal of the City of New Castle from the order and decree of the Court of Common Pleas of Lawrence County, at the December 1948 term of court, which is No. 109 on the March term docket of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, in regard to the petition of the county commissioners to sell certain land situated in the Seventh Ward, New Castle to the Lawrence Farm Bureau Cooperative Association, formerly sold to the county as property of J. Logan Sample, is now before the Supreme Court, and will probably come up for argument sometime after September 26, City Solicitor Robert M. White has been informed.

The "white paper" has been prepared and submitted to the court in printed form as required.

The statement of questions involved is:

1—Is it still the law of Pennsylvania that where property has been sold to a taxing authority for taxes, such taxing authority is a trustee to hold the land for the benefit of all taxing authorities, so as to preclude any other taxing authority from any "later action along the same line?" Disaffirmed by the Court below.

2—May one taxing authority, trustee for itself and other taxing authorities, sell land held by it under such trust, against the desire and interest of its cestuis que trustant?

Affirmed by the Court below.

3—Can substantial rights of a municipality be lost, by estoppel or otherwise, through the laches, negligence, inconsistent acts, or erroneous judgment of its officers or employees?

Affirmed by the Court below.

The assignments of error state that now, August 1, 1949, comes the appellant, by its counsel and files assignments of error in the above captioned appeals as follows:

Namely, to the final order in which the court approved the sale by the county commissioners to the Lawrence County Farm Bureau Cooperative Association, of 422 Sampson street, upon payment of the purchase money set forth in petition of $6,650, by the court, John G. Lamore, Judge.

And now, February 4, 1949, an exception is sealed to the above order for the City of New Castle, by John G. Lamore, Judge.

The appellant states that the Court erred in the following expression or finding of fact:

"The fact that the City of New Castle School District and the City of New Castle both participated in the bidding for the property in the County Commissioner's office is clearly inconsistent with their claim of title to the property, as well as their contention that the County Commissioners do not have the right to sell the property."

The controversy is over a piece of ground, containing approximately six acres and three lots of land laying between the said acreage and Lafayette street in the Seventh Ward. It came before the local courts in due process of law, and the decision by the Supreme Court on the city's appeal, joined in by the school district will be awaited with interest.

CORRECT CHANGE IN VOTING PLACE

Through an error in reporting the location of the change of the election house in the Second District of the Third Ward, the wrong location was given in an advertisement on the changes made by the commissioners.

The new voting house in this precinct is the Hartman Building, rear 206 North Crawford avenue, instead of the location previously at Hartzel Building, 114 North Crawford avenue.

NUMBERS WRITER SENTENCED

Frank Mele, of Hillsville, recently arrested on a charge of selling numbers, and who was taken into custody by State police and the county detective, with numbers slips and money in his possession, entered a plea of guilty to the court to pay a fine of $350 or undergo imprisonment in the county jail. He was released when the sentence for his fine was provided.

COMMISSIONERS BACK

County Commissioners Harvey B. Bush and Joseph W. Gilmore have returned from Philadelphia, along with County Solicitor William McElwee, where they attended the convention of the County Commissioners Association of Pennsylvania. Commissioner Joseph F. Travers will be back the first of the week.

The convention, held the early part of the week was one which proved most interesting, bringing up for discussion many problems affecting the commissioners.

NO MARRIAGE LICENSES

Cupid took a brief vacation yesterday, when not one single couple appeared to take out the necessary papers preparatory to entering into the holy state of matrimony.

This is an unusual situation, as the number of licenses issued so far this year is on a par with former years. However, apparently, couples awaiting the fatal step were just a little indifferent about the matter, and it wasn't Friday the Thirteenth either.

LAWRENCE VACATES

Deputy Controller George E. Lawrence of Shenango township, has left on his annual vacation, which will be spent in the wilds of Canada.

Mr. Lawrence is hopeful that the fish will be biting a little better than they did for some of his other compatriots at the Court House, as the number of licenses issued so far this year is on a par with former years. However, apparently, couples awaiting the fatal step were just a little indifferent about the matter, and it wasn't Friday the Thirteenth either.

Middle Class British Tiring Of Socialism

In this concluding article of "An American Looks At Britain," Indiana State Rep. Russell I. Richardson, just back from a fact-finding trip to England, tells of British farmers and white collar workers under a Socialistic government.)

By RUSSELL I. RICHARDSON
(Copyright, 1948, by I. N. S.)

LEBANON, Ind., Aug. 27.—There are two groups of people in Britain—aside from the factory and mine workers—who are regarded as politically important in any analysis of the nation under Socialism.

One is the farmer. I have not had as many points of information about him as the others but I believe he resents the over-all regulations and regimentation to which he is subjected in the operation of his farm.

Do As He Is Told

Surely he appreciates the parity or price supports offered to him for his crops. But, I have been informed that he must plant what and where he is told, use such methods as are prescribed, seed at prices fixed for him and otherwise yield to the rather inflexible rules of a master planner.

Failing to abide by such regulations, he may be heavily fined or—in extreme cases—he may be dispossessed of his farm.

This is repugnant to an American farmer's way of life and represents the end of free enterprise to him. I should think it would appear similarly to English farmers and have been told that they do not like the system and feel that greater production would follow greater personal freedom in operating their land.

The other group about which I think there is less certainty of opinion in favor of the government at present is the service people. The clerks, the shop-keepers, independent contractors—in short, white collar middle-class workers. I think they are unpredictable.

They are intelligent observers and thinkers, and respond to independent and varied influences. Their pay has not been substantially increased, yet they bear all

Whether or not Britain has found a remedy for its post-war ills remains to be seen. Many trends there are proceeding simultaneously in the U.S.A. certainly the lot of all mankind can be improved without the destruction of any.

But, democracy is a peculiar thing. Each man and woman seems to vote his own self interest and, in many cases that is against the interest of the very country which we hope so fervently to preserve.

Kiwanis Sponsored Circus Plays Here August 30th

It wouldn't be a circus without clowns and among circus clowns George Cook, shown above is one of the funniest.

George and his miniature comedy auto are with the Mills Brothers Circus which plays here August 30 under the auspices of the Kiwanis club on the riding academy grounds in Union township.

More Than Fun

Back of the circus is more than fun, although there will be plenty of that. The Kiwanis club is presenting the circus to build their fund for underprivileged children. Hence a ticket to the circus also is a ticket to help some youngster.

Tickets purchased before show day mean more to the Kiwanis fund than those purchased at the box office. Come Tuesday and the circus rolls into town for the dual purpose of giving young and old entertainment and aiding a worthy cause.

Around Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 27.—Any movie fan with a hankering to see Jane Russell in person will have a chance to during the next few fortnights.

The black-tressed beauty who grabbed fame with "The Outlaw," and who has remained in the forefront of film fillies with her toiling in "Montana Belle" and "It's Only Money," is about to embark upon a period of personal appearance touring.

Good Reason?

Jane has a brace of good reasons for abdicating her comfortable abode.

First, she is a great believer in such tours, having learned from personal experience they build more interest in a star than any other gimmick.

Secondly, her husband, Bob Waterfield, is currently competing with the Los Angeles Rams professional football club.

Any Volunteers?

"From the day Bob goes into practice until the season is over," Jane said, "my best chance to see him is to go to the Coliseum and watch him play on Sunday afternoon."

This year Bob is concentrating harder than ever, according to Jane. The Rams have come up with some sprightly rookie quartet.

NO KIDDING

Victor Mature, incidentally, looked at a projection room showing of RKO Radio's "Easy Living," in which he stars as a professional football player, and commented:

"I look so good on the gridiron I make Bob Waterfield look like he's only the husband of Jane Russell."

Hearings Ordered For Marketing Areas

HARRISBURG, Aug. 27.—(INS)

Price hearings for four southeastern Pennsylvania milk marketing areas were ordered today by the state milk control commission.

The hearings, called on the commission's own motion, will be held September 6 at Allentown for the Lehigh area; September 7 at Reading for the Reading-Berks area; September 9 at York for the York area; and September 1 for the Harrisburg area.

The call follows the commission's action Thursday in ordering a half-cent a quart price increase in five other areas throughout the state.

The Thursday order cancelled an automatic cent and a half increase scheduled to become effective September 1, and at the same time cut cream prices two cents per half gallon and eliminated a one-cent differential allowed for homogenized milk.

Appropriations Log Jam Broken

By PHILLIPS J. PECK
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(INS)—Senate leaders today sighted the end of the appropriations log jam with approval near for the 14 billion dollar defense spending bill.

A final vote is scheduled for Monday afternoon on the measure, which carries funds to run the vast military establishment. It is the largest money bill of the 81st congress.

These three hurdles remain in its path:

1. A rider by Sen. McClellan (D) Ark., directing President Truman to lay off between five and ten per cent from all appropriations made by the current congress.

2. A motion by Sen. Douglas (D) Ill., to send the measure back to the senate appropriations committee for further reduction.

3. An amendment by Sen. Wiley (R) Wis., to bar use of army subsistence funds for purchase of oleomargarine—a touchy subject in the senate.

Sen. Thomas (D) Okla., chairman of the subcommittee handling the military bill, vigorously defended it. He said it represented a reduction of one billion, 393 million dollars in the measure passed by the house.

The measure, as it stands now, includes 12 billion 731 million dollars in cash and two billion 58 million dollars in contract authorizations for the defense establishment in the 1950 fiscal year.

Improper Spending To Be Investigated

By GLENN M. GREEN
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Chairman Hoey (D) N. C., said today that his Senate five percent probers will delve into the possibility of "improper" expenditures by federal agencies in an entirely new angle on the sensation-packed inquiry.

Hoey indicated that this phase of the investigation will begin after Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan's appearance on the witness stand next Tuesday provides the Senate group with what may well be its stormiest session to date.

The chairman commented cryptically that the committee has information "concerning government agencies that might indicate something improper or out of the ordinary connected with government business or expenditures."

Hoey said there are no plans to turn over any evidence the committee may have on Vaughan, President Truman's military aide to the president unless Mr. Truman requests it.

Meanwhile, the group is preparing to deliver possible tax fraud and perjury evidence against John Maragon to the justice department.

A final vote is scheduled for Monday afternoon on the measure, which carries funds to run the vast military establishment. It is the largest money bill of the 81st congress.

These three hurdles remain in its path:

1. A rider by Sen. McClellan (D) Ark., directing President Truman to lay off between five and ten per cent from all appropriations made by the current congress.

2. A motion by Sen. Douglas (D) Ill., to send the measure back to the senate appropriations committee for further reduction.

3. An amendment by Sen. Wiley (R) Wis., to bar use of army subsistence funds for purchase of oleomargarine—a touchy subject in the senate.

Sen. Thomas (D) Okla., chairman of the subcommittee handling the military bill, vigorously defended it. He said it represented a reduction of one billion, 393 million dollars in the measure passed by the house.

The measure, as it stands now, includes 12 billion 731 million dollars in cash and two billion 58 million dollars in contract authorizations for the defense establishment in the 1950 fiscal year.

Improper Spending To Be Investigated

By GLENN M. GREEN
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Chairman Hoey (D) N. C., said today that his Senate five percent probers will delve into the possibility of "improper" expenditures by federal agencies in an entirely new angle on the sensation-packed inquiry.

Hoey indicated that this phase of the investigation will begin after Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan's appearance on the witness stand next Tuesday provides the Senate

Bradley was recalled to testify in secret after a new controversy arose in the two committees over the Vandenberg-Dulles amendment to kill the retooling proviso of the arms-aid bill.

The administration is asking authority to earmark 155 million dollars to get European war plants back in operation.

Sens. Vandenberg (R) Mich., and Dulles (R) N. Y. propose to eliminate this feature. They contend that the plants might aid the Soviet war machine should Russia overrun Europe.

Sen. Gurney (R) S. D., agreed with Bradley to call in federal mediators in an attempt to settle the dispute after failing to reach agreement on any major points. Some agreement was reached on minor fringe benefits during the discussions, which began in Atlantic City July 20.

A new contract for 26,000 glass workers is involved.

Both sides agreed to call in federal mediators in an attempt to settle the dispute after failing to reach agreement on any major points. Some agreement was reached on minor fringe benefits during the discussions, which began in Atlantic City July 20.

"I think this is just about the most important provision in the bill. It gives Europe a chance to build up its own war reserve and take the load off us."

Anti-Catholicism Charged To Tito

By MICHAEL CHINIGO
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 27.—(INS)—The Vatican, through its official radio, openly accused Marshal Tito of still hoping to crush Catholicism.

A broadcast urged Catholics throughout the world to be wary of reports that a reconciliation between the Vatican and Yugoslavia is in the making.

It accused Tito and his followers of "using the same methods and the same ferocity" as the Kremlin and the Cominform in persecuting the church.

Broadcasts in all languages carried a formal statement—obviously inspired by Pope Pius—which said: "In circles that are following most closely and with greatest interest all developments toward the East, it has been noted that the press and radio recently distributed news about increasing tension between Yugoslavia and Russia.

"This has induced one to believe that the Yugoslav Communist policy toward the church was changed . . .

"There have been reports of meetings between Tito and the clergy and of the imminent liberation of Archbishop Stepinac (sentenced to 15 years in prison for alleged treason.)

"These and other like news items unfortunately find no confirmation in the reality of the situation.

Concedes Britain "Welfare State"

NANTUCKET, Mass., Aug. 27.—(INS)—Sir Oliver Franks, British ambassador to the United States, conceded today that Britain is "a welfare state" but he denied that Marshall plan aid to Britain is helping to subsidize the British social services system.

The ambassador, vacationing at Nantucket, told the New Bedford Standard-Times:

"It just isn't true. The Marshall plan dollars which have come to us have been expended on food, raw materials and a small amount of specialized machinery. These have been the foundations of the recovery Britain has made. Our own sterling can buy the goods Marshall plan dollars enables us to obtain.

Rev. A. E. Simon Will Speak At Union Service

Rev. A. E. Simon, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church, will be the visiting speaker at the Union service of the churches of New Castle and vicinity on Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock in Second Baptist church.

The service, which is the next to last in the summer series, will be presided over by Rev. Jess L. McFarland, pastor of the church. The Young People's chorus of the church will furnish the special music for the evening service, which is expected to draw a good attendance.

"The Colony of Heaven" is the theme that Rev. Simon has chosen to address his Sunday evening audience.

The services, which began the last Sunday in June in the Epworth Methodist church, have moved about the various churches of the downtown section with a different pastor speaking each night. The final service is scheduled for Sunday evening, September 4, in St. John's Lutheran church, North street and Neshannock avenue. The speaker at that time will be Rev. Arthur D. Wenger, associate pastor of the First Christian church.

The union meetings have been sponsored jointly during the summer by the New Castle Ministerial association and the New Castle Council of Churches.

Industrial Activity Not Too Encouraging

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Aug. 27.—(INS) — Pennsylvania's industrial activity during July was labeled "anything but encouraging" today by the business research bureau at Pennsylvania State College.

"For the sixth consecutive month," the bureau's report stated, "industrial activity during July fell below the figure for the previous month.

"With the index of industrial activity standing at 167," the bureau reported, "the decline over July, 1948, amounts to 21 points or 1 per cent."

The index, lowest since 1941, reflected what the bureau called a "recession" and extensive employee vacations.

Two German Students Enroll For Classes

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Aug. 27.—To help promote international understanding, two students from occupied Germany will be enrolled at the Pennsylvania State College this fall.

The students, chosen through the Institute of International Education, New York, N. Y., are Otto Baer, of Oberlingen, Baden, and Herbert Krane, of Lunen, Westphalia.

Student members of Delta Theta Sigma and Alpha Zeta, agricultural fraternities at Penn State, have accepted responsibility for room and board expenses of the two men, who will live in fraternities with the students.

Trustees of the college have agreed to take care of fees, while the federal government and Institute of International Education will pay transportation costs.

The students were chosen on the basis of scholarship, personal qualifications, and interest in furthering democratic ideals in their own country.

The students are expected to arrive in New York about Sept. 21.

Flames Completely Destroy Automobile

Wampum volunteer fire department was called to put out an automobile fire on the Wampum-Moravia road early this morning but arrived too late to do any good.

The car, owned by George Mallory, Wampum, R.D., was completely destroyed by the flames which, it is believed, were caused by a short circuit.

Officer Sigler Attends Police 5-Day Convention

Officer George S. Sigler, Lyndale street, has returned to New Castle after attending a five-day convention of the Fraternal Order of Police at Lexington, Ky.

Sigler was a delegate from the New Castle chapter of the F.O.P. to convention in which every state of the nation was represented.

The convention elected Lt. Jack Dudek of Cleveland to his third term as president and chose Cincinnati as its 1951 convention site.

A resolution urging the outlawing of horror and lurid comic books was reaffirmed by the F.O.P. Delegates endorsed a stand taken at the last convention in 1947, in which such comic books were listed as contributing to juvenile crime. Chief Chris Keisling of Carnegie, Pa., offered this resolution.

HOW TO REMOVE RUST STAINS FROM FABRIC

Take extra care of household fabrics during this time of year when they are subjected to much moisture. Often bathroom towels, a shower curtain, tea towels, or tablecloths lie against household equipment made of copper, brass, tin or other metals, when these fabrics are damp, rust stains may appear quickly. Homemakers should care for fabrics so that they do not contact metals when damp. However, if a household fabric should be rust stained, treat the stain as soon as possible. Fresh stains are much easier to remove than those which have become set.

Use a mild acid, such as lemon juice, vinegar or a 10 per cent solution of acetic acid. Apply the acid, letting it stand for a while, then rinse the fabric thoroughly in clear water. Repeat if necessary.

Another method for removing a rust spot is to sprinkle salt on the stain, squeeze lemon juice over it and place the stained area in the sun. If traces of rust remain after several hours add more lemon juice. When the stain is gone, rinse the fabric in clear water.

Avoid using chlorine bleaches on tarnish stains. The bleach may have an effect which will intensify and set the stain rather than remove it.

Farmers' Dollar Drops In Value

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(INS) — The agriculture department reports that the farmers' share of the retail food dollar has slumped to its lowest point in nearly seven years.

The latest drop occurred in June when farmers received only 48 cents of every dollar spent by American consumers.

June also marked the third consecutive month during which farmers have received less than half of the consumer's dollar.

The latest figure is seven cents below the record high which farmers received in January, 1948, and four cents less than the year ago level.

The department attributed the steady slide in farmers' margins over the last year to a general cut in retail food prices and a jump in marketing charges. The agency added:

"Farm prices have absorbed the greater part of both the increases and the decreases in retail prices.

During the past 12 months, the department said that retail farm food prices fell about seven per cent, marketing charges increased one per cent and farm prices slumped about 14 per cent.

However, the American farmer is still far better off today than he was during 1935-39 when his share of the food dollar averaged 40 cents. In 1932, it reached a record low of 32 cents.

Declines in farm prices were recorded in every commodity group except meat products between May and June. Farm meat-product prices rose three per cent but this was more than offset by nine per cent drop in fruits and vegetables and a four per cent dip in bakery and cereal products.

In another report, the department said that Washington growers of "Delicious" apples received only 28 per cent of what the fruit sold for in Chicago.

Twenty-four per cent of the Chicago retail price went for washing, grading, packing, cold-storage and other services at the packing plant; 14 per cent went for transportation from the packing plant to Chicago, and 36 per cent went for wholesaling and retailing after the apples reached their destination.

The rural electrification administration has granted its 9,000th loan since 1935.

In the last 14 years, REA has extended $1,867,089,858 in credits to help rural electric cooperatives give farmers more power.

The agriculture department will make special "disaster" loans available to farmers in 66 Kansas counties.

The credits are designed to help farmers recoup losses from heavy rains, hail, plant diseases, soil blowing and freezing weather during recent months.

Pittsburgh Steelers Seeking AAC Castoffs

By TROY GORDON

International News Service Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH, Aug. 27.—Now is the time for all pretty good men to come to the aid of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

For Coach John Michelosen's club needs reinforcements before the 1949 National Professional football season opens Sept. 25.

The Steelers have devised a rather shrewd method of getting that necessary help, too. How successful it will be remains to be seen.

The All-American Conference—alleged much-herald rival of the NFL—is going to come to their aid.

The AAC opened its league schedule Friday. Therefore, all rosters must be trimmed to 32 men. That means some pretty fair football talent will be floating from training camp to training camp, looking for jobs.

Reception Committee

The Steelers have a reception committee all ready to greet anyone over six feet tall and weighing upwards of 175 pounds who shows up at their Cambridge Springs, Pa., camp. And Steeler prospects may apply by appointment.

The Steeler board of strategy figures these displaced players may be the answer to their problems.

The Pittsburgh team has had its troubles: players dropping out of football, jumping to the All-American Conference instead of accepting pay cuts, injuries and other unfortunate occurrences.

Not Many Candidates

As a result, they're struggling along with less than 40 candidates. And some of them are due for their walking papers any day now.

But the Steelers believe they have enough good men to form a nucleus, and by grabbing the AAC castoffs for reserves, they might just come up with a fair team.

No one thinks deep down in that any league championship will be won this way. But the Steelers have hopes of assembling a team that compares favorably with last year's, which won four and lost eight.

Indians Excursion

Draws Diamond Fans

More than 1500 New Castle baseball fans will travel on a special excursion Sunday to Cleveland to see a doubleheader between the Indians and the Boston Red Sox.

This is the second excursion sponsored by the Wolves club this summer.

The Red Coat band will be part of the delegation that leaves Pennsylvania station at 9:30 a.m. (EDT). This musical organization will serenade the crowd before train time and also play a 15-minute concert between games in the municipal stadium.

The committee in charge of the day's outing and stadium invasion is comprised of Al Scarazzo, Carm Sacco and Kiski Marino.

Pennsylvania R. R. Superintendent Marion Street and other railroad officials will accompany the party in the superintendent's special car.

The train, said to be one of the largest excursions ever run out of New Castle, will go direct to the stadium and lay over there until the twin bill is completed. Wolves President Joe Frenzel has announced a complete sellout of the block of tickets ordered for the top summer attraction.

G.I. 'Live Ghost'

May Head Legion

By SAMUEL GAMBURG
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27.—

The "live ghost" of a G. I. who was left for dead by a Nazi firing squad may be chosen to lead the nation's three million members of the American Legion.

Erle Cocke, Jr., husky 23-year-old Georgian whom the Germans thought they had killed in the battle of the bulge, is one of the three top candidates for the Legion's national commander, along with Attorney's George N. Craig, Brazil Ind., and James F. Green, Omaha, Neb.

The 200-pound former University of Georgia football star who hails from Dawson, fell before a firing squad in the courtyard of a German farm house. A friendly German found him alive eight hours later and nursed him into shape to be operated on in a tiny village hospital.

He was unconscious for 28 days. Now hale and hearty he explains:

"If there is anything I live for, it is a chance to eliminate those forces of the world that manufacture war and its destructive aftermath."

Cocke termed communism "No. 1 on the list" and labeled it the "greatest threat to American liberty".

He called for a strengthening of the nation's Russian policy and declared that America has no "real enemy"—except Russia.

He warned that the Legion must step up its battle against communism and urged that every post—at home and abroad—act as a community-level watchdog for red activities.

V.F.W. Head Would Unify Vets For National Good

Thirty-six-year-old Clyde A. Lewis of Pittsburgh, N. Y., is the first World War Two Veteran who did not also fight in the first world war to head one of the nation's two major service men's organizations. The attorney and ex-bomber pilot outlines his plans for bettering the lot of ex-GIs in the following exclusive signed article for International News Service and asserts he will do his best to make America realize the folly of unpreparedness.

By CLYDE A. LEWIS
Commander in Chief Veterans of Foreign Wars
(Written Expressly for International News Service.)

MIAMI, Aug. 27.—As commander of the VFW I have set for myself a definite goal—and that is to promote unity and understanding throughout the ranks of all veterans, whether they are members of the VFW or some of the other veterans organizations.

With our veteran population now totaling nineteen million, it takes no tricks or arithmetic to figure what a potent force in American life organized veterans can be.

The veteran who has offered his life in defense of his country is rightfully entitled to certain considerations which have been traditional in America since the American revolution. When the revolutionary war ended, George Washington advocated and secured pensions for the men who won the country's freedom. The award of suitable pensions to our fighting men has been a tradition to this day.

Lists Points For Goal

I shall fight for enactment by Congress of a law providing adjusted service compensation for World War Two veterans.

I shall do my best to make America realize the folly of unpreparedness. My organization has mandated me to preach preparedness as the surest means of preventing war by any power-mad aggressor.

Adequate military preparedness, including Universal Military Training, a powerful air force, and an army and navy capable of defending us from potential enemies, is a must on the VFW calendar.

I and my organization are alarmed over a new and well organized anti-veteran movement that is growing in this country. This evil-smelling campaign of propaganda is backed by some groups that are influential enough to win the support of a large body of our citizens.

Leading the fight are groups within our government which would deny to the veteran the preference in civil service employment which has long since been recognized as a reward for the sacrifices our fighting men have made.

Fights For Vet's Preference

As leader of the VFW I shall continue to wage an uncompromising fight for veteran preference.

The veterans also need adequate housing and a better opportunity to find a place in the nation's business and industry.

The VFW will oppose any effort to "pool" the veteran hospital program with any over-all government-sponsored, or other, general medical care program.

We do not intend to stand by and see the veteran hospital program scuttled by any self-seeking interests that would practice so-called "economy" at the veterans' expense.

Our full program, in short, will be to safeguard the welfare of the veteran and see he gets his just reward for the sacrifices he made.

TIME SAVER

A liquid masking solution based on plastic resins can be brushed around window panes when wood surfaces are to be painted. After the paint is dry, the plastic shield can be peeled off like tape, thus saving time-consuming work of removing excess paint by scraping.

Pittsburgh Sex Education Plan Becomes Model

More Than 98 Percent Of Girls In Pittsburgh Schools Permitted To Take Course

PITTSBURGH, — (INS) — The success of the Pittsburgh school sex education program is measured by the fact that more than 98 per cent of all girls in the city's schools have received their parents' permission to take the course.

For this reason, the Pittsburgh board of education is being flooded with questions from educators in all parts of the country, requesting information concerning Pittsburgh's sex education program.

Although Pittsburgh officials know their program is far from perfect, they are more than gratified by the whole-hearted acceptance of their work. In other cities such programs have been wrecked by the ignorance, misinformation and misunderstanding.

Before the sex education program was started in Pittsburgh schools eight years ago, a girl could graduate knowing little about her physical self. But today, all but two per cent receive competent instruction by a skilled teacher.

How Program Works

The sex education course, briefly, is this:

First, the teacher introduces the students to the subject, and classes are considered private conversations such as students would have with their mothers.

The teacher stresses the fact that sex plays an important part in health and happiness, that it is God's gift and a sacred trust to be understood and appreciated.

Facts then are discussed informally and questions of students are cleared up. Discussions are frank and free of emotion, and range from simple sex health to the involved social relationships of marriage.

The course concludes with a question and answer period, at which a physician answers previously submitted written questions.

BEVERAGES

Now is the time to begin making such things as icy lemonades and punches to serve with meals and for those cooling off periods between meals. Save time by mixing, chilling and serving beverages in a porcelain enameled pitcher.

Ray Milland Relates Tuberculosis Series

Ray Milland, one of Hollywood's most popular screen stars, will be narrator of a new series of 13 radio demonstrations, "The Constant Invader," being presented by the Lawrence County Tuberculosis society.

"At the time arrangements were made for his narration, Mr. Milland emphasized that he was deeply honored by the request for his assistance in the production of the constant invader."

"In addition to his personal interest in tuberculosis work, Mr. Milland is no stranger to the fields of medical science and public service," Mr. Houston continued. "He takes it upon himself to learn all he can about subjects which interest him most and he has had a special curiosity about the progress of medicine against illness and disease."

This program, "The Constant Invader," will begin Sunday, September 11, at 1:15 p. m. over station WKST and will continue at that time for the duration of the series.
